

Just Don't Look Over The Edge

Working on the Gloubari colony on Saturn is... interesting. We have to wear vacc suits, sure; and the atmosphere and temperature outside of our domes is really hostile, but it's not so bad otherwise. The frameworks the Gloubari use for their sky-colonies can easily bear our weight, and gravity on Saturn is only a little more than ours. Weird, huh?

Good work there, too. Since the average Gloubar is twenty feet tall and thirty feet wide, there's lots of places in their colonies where it's hard for them to squeeze into. We're better at doing maintenance than their robots, so...
