

Inventing While Hungry

“Look,” I said reasonably. “This is not my fault. You wanted a stun cannon that did very specific things. Fine. But when you’re buying super-tech and you demand specific results, you have to accept very specific restrictions.”

“Its power source are frozen turkeys!”

“One requirement for the Organo-Cannon 6000 was: powered by something non-metallic, easily and cheaply available, and non-toxic. AND you didn’t care about temperature, as long as it could be handled safely without gloves. A frozen turkey covers it all. One hundred shots per bird. Boom! Done.”

“And the stuffing?”

“...OK, you got me there. I like stuffing.”
