

The Principle Of The Thing

In 2047 AD, humanity was visited by the Galactic Totality, and told that our species' destiny was to guard the artifact called the Cosmos Egg. We weren't given the option to refuse. Also, our entire solar system was exiled with the Egg to an empty dimension, "to keep us focussed."

That was five millennia ago, and I think we've finally accepted our destiny. Guarding the Cosmos Egg is a noble task. We are privileged to offer our devotion and industry towards keeping the Egg safe.

Mind you: we're still gonna kill all those Galactic Totality jackwagons, once the Egg hatches.
