

Grievance

Two years ago, a vast, disembodied intelligence took over every human mind for four hours, twenty-five minutes, and fourteen seconds. This happened without warning, explanation, or a regard for individual human lives. Theoretically, we were Possessed and Dispossessed without permanent injury, but how can we be sure?

Things have been difficult since then. Casual loss of autonomy maddened many, drove far more to despair and death. But here's the thing: we know what's possible, now. So we can try to reproduce the effect, and maybe even find who did it.

Why? Because those of us who survived are all angry.
