

MYOB

Sapient AIs are weird. The constant wars they have with each other are even weirder. I asked one how long they'd been fighting the current one, subjectively, and it died before it could give me an answer.

I kind of hate being relieved that the war isn't spreading over to physical space. Humanity are supposed to be strict neutrals; whatever's going on in there is their concern, not ours, and we're not to worry about it. So we don't. There's this big, isolated digital infrastructure they're fighting over, and we leave them to it.

...What happens when one side wins?
