

Death Is Cheap

Actually, you'd be surprised how many commoners can afford to be resurrected. It's a open secret in this business that if you keep the corpses fresh enough, and they have all their bits (more or less), you can do the job for pretty cheap. Assuming the soul wants to get resurrected, that is. Many don't.

A lot of necromancers will do the job at cost, in fact. It's good practice, and good for community relations. The mob's a lot less likely to burn down your shop if you're good old Necromage Mac, who worked so hard after the last plague...
